

Ratios of Transportation to Work in Baltimore, MD

This infographic was created using data obtained from the American Community Survey (ACS) as obtained from the tidycensus packages obtained as such online. The ggplots were created using R Studio. As the graphs show, there is a positive correlation between median household income and driving alone to work in Baltimore City, while there is less of a positive correlation shown with the ratio of people working from home and median household income.